MEMORANDUM FOR: General Carter

The attached and subsequent talks I have had with DD/S lead me to believe we are adequately plugged in on this project.

You will recall this item came up at the meeting with the Bureau of the Budget.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Mr. McCone

As you may know, the Stanford Research Institute has been engaged for some time in the study of a Strategic Command Control Communications System for the entire Government and they are about ready to submit a report. Major General Earle F. Cook, Deputy Chief Signal Officer of the Department of the Army, brought Mr. E. Finley Carter, President of Stanford Research Institute, and several of his associates to the Agency today to brief us on their conclusions. Mr. Carter in particular asked me to convey to you his personal regards and to tell you that if you ever have any time when you are on the West Coast he would like very much to discuss this project with you.
